with floating diaphanous angelic veils. They also wore lace caps in coif form with flowing tulle veils and carried bouquets.

Canon Sheppard, the sub-dean of the chapel royal, performed the ceremony, while Mr. Carter gave his daughter away.

Following the wedding there was a reception at Dorchester House, which was loaned by Ambassador and Mrs. Reid for the occasion.

The presents were among the most costly and beautiful displayed. Mr. and Mrs. Carter gave the house which they occupied, at 55 Chesham street, when Mr. Carter held the first secretaryship in the London embassy. It had been beautifully refitted and furnished. J. Pierpont Morgan sent a flexible pearl chain and a great diamond plaque. Andrew Carnegie sent a superb diamond and emerald brooch, Ambassador and Mrs. Reid a diamond hair bandeau.

Mrs. David Morgan, the bride's grandmother, gave her an all-round diamond crown. Mrs. Frederick Vanderbilt, a silver George III ring, a similar one being the gift of Mrs. Ogden Mills; Mrs. Anthony Drexel, a silver George III bread basket; the Duchess of Sutherland, a pair of gold cups; Mrs. John Mackay, a corsage ornament of emerald and pearls.

Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt sent a gold chain purse bag set with sapphires; Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Martin, a blue enamel watch stud studded with pearls; Mrs. Frank Mackay, a diamond brooch; Baroness Von Zedtwitz, a pair of Tiffany silver gift mirrors; Lord and Lady Mount Stephen, a blue enamel pocket watch; and Mrs. Charles Lawrence, a blue enamel pocket watch.

Besides these, checks from several of the bride's American relatives, such as Mrs. Bernard Carter, Bernard Carter, Jr., Fellows Morgan, and Ernest Law, were received.

The bridegroom's present to the bride was a splendidly equipped motor car in which the honeymoon trip will be made.

DOROTHY DEACON TO BE A PRINCESS

LONDON, June 21.—One of the most romantic weddings, and one which is attracting the interest of society generally and the Anglo-American colony particularly, is that set for this week between Miss Dorothy Deacon, youngest daughter of the late E. A. Deacon, of New York, and Prince Albert Radziwili, of the ancient house of Radziwili, of Lithuania.

The family of the latter and his friends expected him to take a bride from a house of ancient lineage. The prince came to England to arrange for the wedding, owing to the difficulty in his own country of arranging alliances between persons not of the same religion.

G. W. U. FUND GROWS; WORKERS SANGUINE

Estimates of the joint sum which the respective committees of the Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Trade are raising to aid the George Washington University lead to the conclusion that the agitation of these two bodies among the business men of the community will meet with entire success, and that the sum of $75,000 necessary to proceed properly with the affairs of the forthcoming scholastic year will be subscribed.

Former Commissioner Macfarland, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce committee, said today that the efforts of that body had been attended by unusual success, and that at the meeting of the committee tomorrow afternoon the executive committee for the scholastic year of 1911 will be appointed to include Alpheus H. Snow, chairman; Charles H. Stockton, John B. Lerner, A. S. Worthington, W. H. Flather, W. D. Hoover and W. H. Singleton upon its roll of membership.

A committee of the Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Trade, Prof. William H. Hough was appointed temporary secretary of the University in the place of H. C. Davis, who was granted leave of absence until September.

Resolutions commending the work of the teachers' college of the university passed by the Board of Education were received.

LIEUT. J. R. SUTTON DIES AFTER A LONG ILLNESS

Former Harbor Master Expires After Amputation of a Leg.

Lieut. John R. Sutton, commanding the Harbor police precinct, and former Harbor Master of the District, died at 4:30 o'clock this morning in the George Washington University Hospital from diabetes.

Lieutenant Sutton had been ill for a long time. About a week ago his condition became so serious that he was taken to the hospital, where two operations were performed in the hope of checking the disease. Last Saturday the physicians amputated his left leg at the knee.

The operation, however, did not prove effective, and last evening members of the family were notified that they might expect the end at any minute.

The "Commodore," as he was familiarly called by his friends, had been a prominent figure along the river front since 1878, when he was made fish and oyster inspector of the District. In 1883 he was appointed harbor master.

Stopped Illegal Fishing.

Known personally to the officers and men of almost every boat that put into Washington regularly, from the big steamers to the hundreds of little oyster schooners, Lieutenant Sutton, also had a large acquaintance among business men and public officials.

Under his direction the harbor office had always maintained a high efficiency, and it was mainly through his efforts that a stop was put to illegal fishing in District waters. When the "Commodore" first assumed charge of the office it was the practice of fishermen to haul seine during the night. A crusade was started against these fishermen, who fished at all seasons of the year without regard to law, and in a short time it was stopped.

Born in the District of Columbia sixty-three years ago, Lieutenant Sutton was first appointed on the police force in 1873. Five years later he was detailed as fish and oyster inspector.

In 1883 he resigned from the police force to become harbor master of the District. In 1885 the position was made part of the police force, and the harbor master's office became a police precinct.

In May, 1888, Lieutenant Sutton was authorized by the District Commissioners to go to New York and purchase a police boat with which to patrol the harbor. The next month the Vigilant went into commission.

Lieutenant Sutton was prominent in Masonic circles, and the funeral will be with full Masonic honors. He was a member of Columbia Lodge, No. 2, F. A. A. M.; Mt. Vernon Chapter, No. 2, R. A. M.; Ruth Chapter, No. 1, Eastern Star; the Oldest Inhabitants' Association, the Veteran Firemen's Association, the Pilots' Association, Game and Fish Protective Association, and Colonial Beach Association. He is survived by a wife and two grandchildren.

Although an announcement of the successor of Lieutenant Sutton will be made for several days, it is regarded as probably, in police circles, that Sergeant Russell Dean, next ranking officer of the harbor precinct, will receive the promotion. Sergeant Dean has been connected with the river force since 1888, and is regarded as one of the best pilots on the Potomac.
